

Humping robo-dogs

by Xenia Jardin

Xenia Jardin: Dan Foygel sez:

The Power Tool Drag Races are an annual series of attractions in San Francisco -- machinists and hippies building drag racers powered by various hand tools and then racing them for fame, glory, and small cash prizes. Last year, the races were filmed for the Discovery Channel, and the episodes are being aired now. This in itself is already pretty damn cool, but I am specifically submitting a link to a race entry that the Discovery Channel refused to film. Entered in the "sex toys" division of the race (which was entirely edited out of the TV episodes), it's two plush Toys 'R

Us dogs which propel themselves down the track by way of humping, powered by an internally concealed hand drill. There is a lovely amateur video of it on the site.

Link

Purchase Plush Style Dog Toys Online · Shop Waggin Tails for safe, natural pet foods, treats, supplements and toys. Featuring plenty of plush style toys for dogs. Great prices and service. Fast shipping.

www.waggintails.com

SPONSORED LIST